The Prez Sez

The first of our winter series of drives should have taken place on September 20th but the tail end of a hurricane or two got in the way so it had to be postponed. Our Kitt Peak Picnic Drive will now take place on Saturday October 4th.

This coming month is very special as we will be holding our 42nd Concours D'Elegance on the 25th. Lets make this our best ever concours by giving it max support. Even if your Jag is not a 100 pointer why not bring it along and get it judged. It is a lot of fun just to participate and you are sure to learn a lot about your car. Even if you are not presenting your car for judging why not enter it in the Display division and just enjoy having your car on show? And last but not least if you are not bringing your Jaguar just bring yourself and enjoy the spectacular line up of Jaguars. All the information about the event including a registration form can be found on pages 13 to 16 in this newsletter.

Looking a little further ahead we can look forward to our double overnighter to Verde Valley. This will be a wonderful event so please join us. The excellent article in last months newsletter tells you all about it. Mark November 7th on your calendar.

This month our cover page has a superb shot of an Avro Lancaster WW2 Bomber sharing the limelight with 3 E-types. There are only two airworthy Lancasters in existence, one based in Canada and the other in England, and they came together this summer to do some air shows in England, usually accompanied by a Spitfire and Hurricane. The sound of 10 Rolls Royce Merlin engines flying past in close proximity is certain to gladden the heart of any vintage aviation enthusiast. I'm sure you will agree that classic cars and classic airplanes go so well together.

Happy Motoring,
Fred Secker

Jaguar XE Launched in London

A Star Studded Launch in Central London

On September 8th, the Jaguar XE, or "Baby Jag" made its first public appearance.

The new model is designed to attract young drivers and women to a firm that has traditionally appealed largely to rich, older men.

What's the big idea?

Jaguar chief executive Ralf Speth says the XE has come from a "completely blank sheet of paper" and emerged out of "listening to what the market and the customers said". The XE will "become a hot car, a fashionable car," he says.

Jaguar has built two new plants and will create 2,300 jobs to bring the car to market. This comes at a critical moment for the firm, as it seeks to expand its niche audience. "The XE is unbelievably important to [JLR]," Speth said at the UK launch. "It's important we expand the range to cover more product segments and bring younger customers, bring females, into the range of Jaguar".

Styling

Jaguar intended to create the "most fun" car to drive in its class. Car Buyer magazine says it "certainly looks sporty". The car takes its design cues from the larger Jaguar XF, including its prominent grille and "intricate headlight design" which is fitted with LED lights. The XE's sloping roofline and swept-back windscreen make it look "almost like a five-door coupe rather than a boxy saloon car," Car Buyer says. Ian Callum, Jaguar's design director, said: "We decided to stick with the Jaguar design philosophy. People have started to get used to Jaguar and what they look like. The Jaguar XE is a sports saloon with a long bonnet, great wheel to dash proportions, the cabin set backwards and a coupe profile. But we've still got great packaging inside. It is longer than a BMW 3 Series, shorter than an Audi A4 and with an interior comparable with the C-Class Mercedes".

Engine

The Jaguar XE's engines, dubbed "Ingenium" by Jaguar, promise greater performance and improved efficiency than previous models. The improvements will be "felt from behind the wheel" due to a reduction in the engine weight of up to 80kg compared with current models.

Interior

Jaguar says it has worked hard to maximise the car's interior space. However, Jaguar has not yet released exact interior measurements, and says that it has not set out to be the best in its class. What Car says that the car is quite dark, which lends the cabin "an enclosed feeling".

Some experts have their doubts about Jaguar's interior. Max Warburton of Bernstein Research says that Jaguar's German rivals have more experience and a longer track record in luxury.

"Apparently the interior is small, due to the need to use box section aluminum in the sills for rigidity, so there is less room than in steel-bodied competitor cars," he says. "The interior is described as plain".

Tech features

The XE will come with the company's latest InControl "infotainment" system. The system offers Bluetooth connectivity, wi-fi hotspot capabilities, remote functionality (which allows users to control aspects of their car such as door locks and climate control remotely via smart phone), a heads-up display and "high quality" audio. The XE's display will also mirror a smart phone, allowing drivers to activate apps, music and podcasts directly from the dashboard. The whole system is activated using a voice control system, Jaguar says "so drivers can keep their eyes on the road" without navigating through menus. However, drivers of a certain vintage be warned: there's no CD slot.

Price and launch date

The Jaguar XE will start from about $43,000, the company says – a few hundred dollars more than the BMW 316d SE – and will be available to test drive next year, with the first orders being delivered in May.

Test Your Knowledge of Jaguar History

- 1) When the first ever Jaguar was revealed, Sir William Lyons (founder of Jaguar Cars) asked guests of the launch event to speculate on how much the SS Jaguar 2.5 Litre Saloon would cost. The average guess was 632 Pounds. In fact, it cost:
A. 385 Pounds B. 785 Pounds C. 985 Pounds
- 2) For the 1938 British Motor Show, Lyons penned a coupe version of the SS100. With beautiful sweeping curves and Art Deco detailing it proved a sensation. How many were built?
A. 1 B. 100 C. 500
- 3) At Le Mans in 1953, three Jaguar C-Types finished in the top five. The company sent a telegram to the Queen, dedicating its win to her in her coronation year and received a congratulatory reply from Her Majesty. What was their finishing order?
A. 1st, 2nd and 4th B. 1st, 3rd and 5th C. 1st, 4th and 5th
- 4) Steve McQueen owned a Jaguar XKSS and kept it for 10 years before selling it. Clearly regretting his decision, McQueen later bought the car back and owned it until his death. How many XKSS cars were produced in total?
A. 16 B. 36 C. 26
- 5) The first time he saw one, Enzo Ferrari proclaimed the E-Type to be "the most beautiful car ever built". Road & Track magazine reported it "the greatest _____ known to man." (Fill in the blank.)
- 6) The XJ220 was developed by an informal group of Jaguar employees known as the 'Saturday Club' who, as the name suggests, dedicated their spare time to special projects. Why was the car called the XJ220?
A. Its planned top speed was 220 mph. B. They built 220 of them. C. Its 2.2-liter engine.
- 7) Sir William Lyons' daughter was co-driver of 'NUB 120' the most famous competition XK120 ever. Her husband Ian Appleyard drove it to three Alpine Cup victories and two RAC Rally wins. Her first name was:
A. Pat B. Margaret C. Esmerelda
- 8) The introduction of disc brakes was thanks to Jaguar. They were first fitted to the C-Type raced by Stirling Moss and Norman Dewis in the Mille Miglia. Italian race officials were mystified by the new technology and demanded a demonstration to prove it was in fact a brake and not some illegal addition. What year was the race?
A. 1952 B. 1950 C. 1948
- 9) In his teens, Ian Callum, Jaguar's current design director, wrote to Bill Heynes (then chief engineer) enclosing some of his own designs for a Jaguar. Heynes kindly replied, suggesting to Callum he should learn engineering draughtsmanship and study industrial design. Callum's design influence was subsequently first seen on Jaguar's:
A. S-Type B. XK C. XF

(The answer to all questions, except number five is "A". The answer to number five is "crumpet catcher.")
